"We have seen in operation no less than seven inferent horse hay-forks, some of which we had anisolared good ones, and which do operate well.—But when we saw the fork exhibited at Rochester, by N. Palmer, Greenville, Greene County, N. Y., all others were left clear in the shade. It is decidedly the most perfect implement, in the line of horse and hay forks, that has ever been made. There is no chance for improvement in it; said one of the most commontable features in its manufacture in the process the lowest of any other style of forks that we know of. We have no interest, whatever, in the manufacture or sale of this kind of horseforks, and we are not even acquainted with the proprietor of it. But we know it to be an implement that will never fail to give best of satisfaction. The principle on which every part is made, is according to the most approved mechanical and philosphical principles." L OOKING GLASSES, Plain and CROCKERY STORE.
